متارح لوح و قلم چھن گئی تو کیا غم ہے
کہ خونِ دل میں ڈبولی ہیں انگلیاں میں نے
زباں پہ مہر لگی ہے تو کیا کہ رکھ دی ہے
ہر ایک حلقہء زنجیر میں زباں میں نے

Faiz Ahmed Faiz

1911-1984

FAIZ was one of the most acclaimed poets of South Asia, born in Sialkot, Pakistan, writing in Urdu & Punjabi. He allied his poetry and person not only with the aspirations of Pakistanis but also with the international movement for peace and human rights. He was awarded the Lenin Peace Prize and was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize.

FAIZ's outspoken condemnation of injustice and inequality led to the charges of high treason and was imprisoned. A romantic revolutionary poet kept writing, conventional theme of love & beauty submerged in larger social & political issues, Dast-e-Saba & Zindan Nama, two collections of modernist poetry blended with classical Urdu & Farsi tradition.

He was friends with Nazim Hikmet and Pablo Neruda, the Nobel Laureate.

FAIZ's poetry is a message of hope for the people longing for peace and freedom, a source of inspiration for those seeking to build a just society.

A Tribute by T. Beeth

In a cruel sunless prison
He breathes the freshest air
Deprived of pen and paper
His heart and mind speak volumes
His soul soars
Pierces the relentlessly cold skies
In a harsh dry soil
Grows an unforgiving acorn
That's FAIZ!

قتل گاہوں سے چُن کر ہمارے علم
اور نکلیں گے عشاق کے قافلے
جن کی راہِ طلب سے ہمارے قدم
مختصر کر چلے درد کے فاصلے

Rise now from the dust
My darling young one Wake.
Wake now Wake now.
We've your life's bed to make.
Look how the dark night
Comes wrapped in a long blue shawl
Where these crying eyes
Have heaped up pearls—
So many pearls whose light
Casts on your wedding rite
A shimmering tonight
To brighten your name

From Sar-e-Wadi-Sina
